

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A vehicle front body structure which includes: a pair of side members extending in a vehicle longitudinal direction; 5 a bumper reinforcing member connected to front ends of the side members; a cross member connected to bottoms of the side members in the vicinities of the front ends thereof; and a connecting member connected to the bumper reinforcing member and the cross member. Connection strength between the connecting member and 10 the bumper reinforcing member in the vehicle longitudinal direction is lower than a flexural strength of the cross member in the vehicle longitudinal direction.